Universal Synaptics Receives Prestigious SHARP Award from UOSH

Global diagnostic leader continues to improve business operations

Roy, Utah. March 23, 2020 — Universal Synaptics announced today that it has received the Safety and Health Achievement Recognition Program (SHARP) Award from the Utah Occupational Safety and Health (UOSH) - Utah Labor Commission.

The significant achievement of receiving the SHARP Award establishes Universal Synaptics as a model for work-site safety and health in the State of Utah. SHARP recognizes small business employers who have used OSHA's on-site consultation program services and operate exemplary safety and health programs. Achieving SHARP status grants an exemption from OSHA programmed inspections for up to two years, and subsequent renewal for up to three years.

Lt. Governor Spencer Cox stated that "Universal Synaptics has been a shining example of innovation, hard work, and success in Utah for many years. We are proud that they call this great state home and with the winning of the SHARP Award, they solidify their place as an example of safety as well."

UOSH and Universal Synaptics collaborated to create an agile Health and Safety program that is focused on management and employee involvement. Universal Synaptics safety committee is on a constant team member rotation to ensure everyone learns the details of the program and is an active participant. This process provides maximum visibility, prioritization, and participation from the entire team. Universal Synaptics was once an almost entirely focused R&D shop and has transformed itself into an award-winning concept to design, manufacturing, and product delivery business.

"To be recognized as an organization for what we practice on a daily basis is a meaningful accomplishment", said Jon Lee, Universal Synaptics' Chief Operating Officer. Mr. Lee added "Only seven other companies in the State of Utah have achieved SHARP status, we are very pleased to have received the SHARP Award. The safety and health of our Team Members is very important to us and aligns well with our corporate culture."
